Academic Projects

- Bubble-Game

I created a fun Bubble Game using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript. In the game, the user, as a player, will receive a target number to hit, and the user needs to select the correct number from a bunch of number bubbles appearing on the screen. For each number the user finds, they will earn a score. Additionally, there will be a timer set for 30 seconds, and once the time runs out, the game will end, allowing the user to view their final score.

- TO-DO Master

I developed a Todo website application utilizing HTML, CSS, and JavaScript. Within this application, users are able to generate a list of tasks they wish to accomplish. Once created, these tasks can be edited by the user. Upon completion, users can mark them as such, causing them to appear in the completed tasks list. Additionally, users have the ability to delete tasks at any stage.

- Guessing Number Game

I developed an entertaining number guessing game using Python, wherein users are tasked with guessing a randomly selected number between 1 and 9. In this game, a user is prompted to guess a number between 1 and 9, while simultaneously, the computer generates a random number. Upon the user inputting their guess, the computer's choice is revealed. If the numbers match, the user emerges victorious; otherwise, the game persists. Moreover, users can opt to exit the game at any point.
